

“A prudent person foresees danger and takes precautions”

Proverbs 22:3

As this phase of the pandemic is coming to an end and the doors of many churches are reopening, there are many questions that must be asked of your leaders and congregants. It would be very risky for church leadership to attempt to restart church ministry without some effort to measure the leadership, congregant and spiritual health of the church. Be prudent and get your assessments soon.

Who should get an assessment

- Every church should consider an assessment
- Churches that have never had an assessment
- Churches that were not growing or stagnant before the pandemic began
- Churches with current or a history of leadership conflicts
- Churches that are planning a leadership summit
- Churches with new pastors
- Churches in need of leadership, Elder / Deacon training
- Churches with prudent leaders, who understand the need for a healthy church

Benefits of Church Assessments

- Receive immediate and anonymous feedback
- Gather reliable feedback from various sources
- Celebrate the things the church is doing well and identify what needs attention
- Strengths and weaknesses discovered
- Areas of agreement and disagreement identified
- Disparities between leaders and members are unearthed
- Church surveys can strengthen your leadership efforts.
